I agree with this proposal. Although I support the knowledge of code I am one of those few that have a difficult time hearing the tones and being able to distinguish between the dots and dash. I am still working on it and have been on and off ever since I got my ticket back in 1996. So for those that are like me it would open up new doors.